EXHIBIT #55F

Re: Larry A. Boss

Mental Status Evaluation: Mr. Boss is oriented for time, place, and person. He is neat and organized in his dress and manner. While his affect is appropriate to his conversation, he begins to verbally stumble some over his anger and resentment about his work and life troubles. He becomes agitated and confused and undone. But his thinking is reasoned and consistent with his experiences; abstract thinking is intact. There are no loose associations and no extraneously intruding thoughts. There is no gross evidence of delusions or hallucinations. On his part, there has been no intent of physical danger to himself or to others. There is no gross evidence of psychosis.

The DSM-IV diagnosis is 300.21 Panic Disorder with Agoraphobia. In his work situation, his experienced intensity of stress is unremitting and unrelenting. The fear of another stroke or of a heart attack is real and the need to maintain a proper stress level is imperative for his survival. His efforts at out-patient medical psychotherapy continue although it has not altered his felt struggles. Psychotropic medications are not tolerated. He continues to feel that his potential for personal and professional growth is severely damaged, and he views himself as being irreparably disabled.

Please feel free to contact me if there are further questions.

Respectfully,

Robert A. Fajardo, M.D.

Re: Larry A. Boss

Dear Sirs:

Mr. Larry A. Boss is a 58 year old, single, African-American man, who I first saw in consultation in January, 2010. I have subsequently been treating him in individual medical psychotherapy (90807). His condition is one that has existed for over four years. While initially involving a stressful work situation, his work capacity has become further, adversely affected by a stroke (diagnosed in July, 2009), recurrent episodes of stress related syncope, flare-ups of hypertension, and his longstanding Diabetes Mellitus. The debilitating effects of these medical problems have rendered him incapable of performing his routine job responsibilities. More recently, the stress related syncope episodes started to recur in October, 2010. Because of Mr. Boss' precarious health condition (the accompanying hypertension and diabetes), he is in constant fear of having another stroke or a heart attack. These matters of uneasiness and suffering, especially the fear of having another stroke or a heart attack, are always on his mind.

Additionally, Mr. Boss has felt discriminated against in his work place. In an attempt to minimize the stressful, discriminatory work situation, Mr. Boss filed an EEO complaint, and a judicial finding in his favor was issued in September, 2009. Acts of reprisal from vindictive managers/supervisors have been the resulting workplace consequences of this action. The experienced discrimination and associated stresses continue to be an additional emotional burden despite the EEOC's favorable judgment.

The stress in his work life has involved an ongoing sense of or felt state of depreciation, hostility, and excessiveness of demands. On Mr. Boss' part this has caused severe anxiety, resentment and anger, sleep disturbance, fatigue, concentration difficulties, rapid heart beat, excessive sweating, muscular aches and pains, hearing problems, and the ongoing syncope episodes and the fear of another stroke. His ability to perform routine job and work functions is severely impaired. He becomes depressed, withdrawn, and suffers self-esteem issues to the point of being absent from work and is avoiding tasks that are expected of him.
